

Ship One Piece in Your Voice

Public writing under your name. AI-assisted, you-edited, you-signed.

The watchman warns the city out loud. This week you ship one piece of public-facing writing under your own name — a blog post, a social post, sermon notes, a newsletter, a devotional. AI assists the draft, you do the editing pass, and your name goes on it. You write for the people you've been set on the wall to warn.

THE ACTION

- Pick the piece and the audience — the people you're actually trying to reach.
- Draft with AI, then run it through your W8.T1 fingerprint-strip discipline.
- Add the one thing only you can say — your story, your conviction, your scar.
- Publish it under your name this week. Shipped beats perfect.

PUT YOUR NAME ON IT

Anonymous polish is worthless; named conviction moves people. The point isn't to produce content — it's to say the true thing to the people who need to hear it from you.

SCRIPTURE

Ezekiel 33:6 — "But if the watchman... does not blow the trumpet, and the people are not warned... his blood I will require at the watchman's hand." The warning unspoken is the warning failed. Ship the piece.
